Together, we will...

- Familiarize ourselves with the Teaching with Love and Logic model as a framework to define the type of learning culture that you want to live with your students
- Review collaborative steps to define and build the type of learning culture that you and your students want to experience together
- Review schedules that take both the Learning Coach and students into consideration

Agenda

- 1) Teaching with Love and Logic
- 2) Co-creating the learning culture with your students
- 3) Various types of learning schedules
- 4) Questions

Learning culture...

describes the feeling that you as the Learning Coach and your students will have when working together in support of your learners' academic growth

Teaching with Love and Logic

Teaching with Love and Logic

Love	Logic
“Love means maintaining a healthy relationship with our students, empowering them to make their own decisions, to live with their own mistakes, and to grow through the consequences.”	“Logic allows our students to figure out for themselves the cause-and-effect patterns of how their decisions and behaviors lead to certain consequences; it allows them to know that we love, support, and feel empathy for them in their situations but will not bail them out; it allows responsibility to develop in them as they work through their difficulties and solve their problems for themselves.”

In the chat:

Which words stand out to you from the Love and Logic model?

Love	Logic
“Love means maintaining a healthy relationship with our students, empowering them to make their own decisions , to live with their own mistakes, and to grow through the consequences.”	“Logic allows our students to figure out for themselves the cause-and-effect patterns of how their decisions and behaviors lead to certain consequences ; it allows them to know that we love, support , and feel empathy for them in their situations but will not bail them out ; it allows responsibility to develop in them as they work through their difficulties and solve their problems for themselves.”

Defining the culture

Learning culture typically includes...

1. Defined roles
2. Shared expectations
3. Natural consequences

To describe the feeling that you as the Learning Coach and your students will have when working together in support of your learner's academic growth

1. Defining Roles - Overview

How does the Learning Coach want to feel?	How do students want to feel?

2. Shared Expectations - Overview

Co-create expectations with your students that

- Are age appropriate
- Are phrased positively
- Are a brief list (3-6 is usually a good number)
- Get specific
- Address “pain points”

2. Shared Expectations - Resource

This resource includes:

- A list of age appropriate behaviors & recommended supports
- Examples of expectations that are specific and address pain points

3. Natural Consequences- Overview

Co-create consequences with your learners that...

- Are natural rather than punitive
- Reinforce cause and effect
- Encourage students to solve their own problems
- Allow the Learning Coach time to pause, reflect, and decide

3. Natural Consequences - Resource

Natural Consequences
Natural consequences reinforce for students that there is a cause-and-effect relationship between their actions and outcomes.
"All choices bear fruit, whether sweet or bitter. It is our job to allow students to gently learn and internalize the sometimes wonderful and sometimes biting nature of responsibility."
- Peter Gino, MD & Jim Kay, authors Teaching with Love and Logic
Student Action	Natural Consequence
Student watches YouTube during school time rather than doing lessons.	Student does not receive all the classroom materials that are provided for the Learning Coach to monitor their activity rather than that that is in their folders.
Student forgets to do an assignment for science class.	Student has homework after school time or on the weekend, which may result in the student missing out on a fun family activity, such as a movie night or bike ride.
Student interrupts the Learning Coach several times.	Student is asked to leave the Learning Coach temporarily. Student may have to work late on their assignments after everyone else has finished for the day.
Student texts and chats with friends during school time rather than doing lessons.	Student cannot use their phone during school hours.
Student decides to do an extra assignment in their language arts class.	Student finishes their "To Do list earlier than expected and has additional video game time at the end of the week.
Student spends office hours with a teacher when they are struggling with an assignment.	Student earns a strong grade on the assignment.

- A reminder to allow yourself time to issue a consequence, if needed

A note about punishment

Consequence	Punishment
Goals are to teach , maintain accountability , and maintain safety	Goals are to impose one's authority and elicit an emotional responses, such as guilt, shame, or remorse
Motivation to issue a consequence is to teach one's values and to model cause and effect	Motivation to punish often comes from a place of high emotion and the need to control
Research tells us that consequences create long-term behavioral change	Research tells us that punishment may stop a behavior in the short-term and does not lead to long-term behavioral change

Scheduling for Success

Effective Schedules -Overview

- Morning & Afternoon Meetings
- Clear start and end times for each class
- Focused time for each learner
- Pre-planned breaks
- Prioritize moments that are important to your family

Grade Level Considerations- Scheduling

Elementary School	Middle School	High School
Bell Work	1 subject a day vs. all subjects every day	1 subject a day vs. all subjects every day
Build Independence	Build Student Choice	Remain Hands On
Visually show students when you are Learning Coach vs. Caregiver	Consider the use of a visual timer	Move your body when you are working with each student

Morning Meetings

What are they?
A Morning Meeting is a daily meeting between the Learning Coach (LC) and the teacher. The purpose is to set the tone for the day and connect with your learners. Morning Meetings typically last about 15-20 minutes and might include:

- Reviewing the daily schedule
- Setting individual meeting goals
- Discussing how a student will approach their work for the day
